MR. CAVE'S RELIGION.

The fact that the name of the Rev. R. C. large number of Scuthern Journals, which commented upon his speech in the most flattering terms, while many of the Northern papers, as was expected, were quite bitter in their criticisms, some making reference to Mr. Cave's religious views in rather dispataging language, has aroused general interest in the orator. Before the oration was delivered, however, there were many contradictory rumors about the speaker's opinions on the subject of religion, and some of the rumors went so far as to pronounce Mr. Cave an infidel.

Mr. Cave, who was formerly pastor of the Seventh-Street Christian church in this city, resigned his pastorate here to accept a similar one in St. Louis. According to his own statement, he had not served very long before some differences of opinion in religious matters sprang up between the pastor and some of the members of his church. He held that immersion was not essential for fellowship into the membership of the church, and this, together with some other differences, which will be mentioned later, rendered it practicable in the eyes of the pastor that he resignation, which was quietly tendered, was as quietly accepted.

FORMEO ANOTHER CRURCH.

FORMED ANOTHER CHURCH, Upon the withdrawal of the pastor, who had no other immediate charge in view, some thirty members of the congregation who agreed with the doctrines as set forth by Mr. Cave, whildrew from the church, and asked him to become their pastor.

THEY WERE KNOWN AS INDEPENDENTS.

This he consented to do, and the organization began to grow, and it was not long before they found it necessary to secure larger quarters.

They erected a comfortable house of worship on a desirable lot, the whole costing about $25,000, and with a membership at present of about three hundred, the organization is known as the Non-Sectarian church, of St. Louis. This church together with many other similar organizations in various parts of the country is under the supervision of the American Independent Religious Society, with headquarters at Chicago, and bears a similar relation to the society as the spective conventions. Absolute freedom of religious thought is the principle underlying the organization, and the members of the church differ among themselves in reliatious belief as they see it, each following his own views. The church has no fixed creed, and in many cases the members differ materially with the pastor. The organization has for its object the elevation of mankind, and inquiry into truth and rghteousness, and high moral character from whatever source available. REV. R C. CAVE.

Not a christian.

When asked about his individual views Mr. Cave said that he was a strong advocate of free religious thought, and had no settled creed for the guidance of any man. He believed every one ought to follow where his convictions led, whatever those convictions were, after gathering all the available light from every source. One of the points wherein he differed with the members of the Christian (or Disciples) church was that he aid not believe in the divinity of Christ as set forth in the New Testament. He thought Jesus was a great and good man, and led a high and strictly moral life that might serve as an example for humanity, but nothing more.

Mr. Cave further said he did not believe that the Scriptures were inspired; that the Bible was full of valuable truth, but that the men who wrote it were by no means infallible, and that the Bible was by no means the only book from which religious truth and righteousness could be gathered. He believed in gathering all the valuable truth from the Scriptures, and then supplementing it by other truth, He did not believe in confining a man to a creed, but let everyone think for himself.

"Then there are no religious opinions requisite for fellowship into your churce." I asked.

"Absolute freedom of thought," said he, "is our motto. All we require is that a NOT A CHRISTIAN.

"Absolute freedom of thought," said he,

man shall try to gather all the light his ability. We admit anybody who is striving to do right. I should not hesitate to admit into my church a Buddhist."

SEASON OF DISCONTENT

Or the Time of Year that Goes Hard With the Average Actor.

The theatrical sesson has closed for the The theatrical season has closed for the season of 1831-1. Now commences the time of the year when the actors hair grows to cow boy length, and his clothes become skating rinks for files. He carries his hands in his pockets, and jumbles the key to his pawned watch, if he is so fortunate as to have one, and the night latch key to what once was his boarding house. He is indeed out on the wide world without a penny. He always has most promising offers for the coming season, but they amount to about what Congress is doing—nothing. Frequently he is seen "faking" grease removing liquids, selling souvenir medals, and "doing" specialty acts in some fourth class music hall. But low! when the winter comes, and the season commences, he nibbles at theatrical manager's tempting bait, and chancing one of those thousand doilar a week engagements, he blooms forth again. Attired in a new, latest cut, suit of clothes, a high hat poilshed like unto a mirror, and a diamond stud of massive avoirdupois, he marches up and down the theatrical Rialto of New York. Such is the life of an actor. Lake a celluloid bail on the end of a rubber string he is first up and then down. Take him, however, as you find him, he is always the same "take-life-easy individual."

The actress has more resources to draw from than her masculine contemporary. There is the paint bucket, a never failing friend, the face mask warranted to make an old face look new, and her paste, non-metable, ground glass diamonds. Then, perchance, she may catch a million dollar husband, a chance which is not rare in threse actress loving days. She has many other qualities, too numerous to mention, with which she can manage to keep her coffers filled with United States coins, and keep her back turned to the poor house door.

Immediately on reaching Paris, Jean Lassaile, the opera singer, challenged Willle Schutz, the husband of the de Resakes sister. Schutz, according to Lassaic, at first accepted the challenge, but Schutz said he could not fight, as he was able to find but one s season of 1832-4. Now commences the time of the year when the actors hair

The Kimball Opera Comique company closes at Boston next week a continuous season of two years, during which Carinne has not missed a single performance—a remarkable record—Lillian Russell has had an offer of one hundred guineas for each of twenty drawing-room engagements in London this summer.—Koster and Bial have engaged Dowe, the tailor of Manheim, Germany, who invented a builet-proof jacket, and while wearing it permit ridemen to fire at him at short range with regulation army rifles.

They look with leniency upon people who create disturbances in Parisian theatres. Victorine Baucarne, who, in a fit of jealousy, threw missiles at Mile. Jane Harding, while the latter was playing the part of Phryne at the Opera Comique, has been fined five francs "for disturbing order in a theatre." But then she only threw a dead rabbit and a dried codish.

"Venus" and the Camille d'Arville Opera company closed last Saturday at Chicago a continuous and generally a very prosperous season of thirty-seven weeks. Miss D'Arville will rejoin Mr. Rice in the fall, her contract having two more years to run.

On the occasion of her retirement from De Wolf Hopper's company at Washing-ton, May 1s, Della Fox was presented with a silver bowl and tray by the members of the organization. Edna Wallace Hop-per is now playing Miss Fox's part in "Panjan drum."

Charles MacGeacby and Richard Golden are again associated as manager and star, and will take "Old Jed Prouty" on a tour of the whole country, State by State and town by town, commencing in Maine, in August, and covering a period of three years, after which they will make a professional trip to Europe.

Manager Purdy is making the most elaborate preparations for the production by Fanny Rice in the early autumn, of Phillips and Brookfield's comedy-farce. Miss Innocence Abroad." Carte blanche has been given scenic artists and costumers, and the piece will be superbly staged.

James T. Powers is shortly to join the "Princess Bonnie" company as comedian in place of Fred Lenox, who is to appear in "Prince Pro Tem."

It is said that the profits of the run of "Sowing the Wind" at the New York Empire were close upon $50,000, "Raising the Wind" couldn't do better.

One of the features of "The Society Butterfly," Robert Buchanan's new play just produced in London, was the ap-pearance of Mrs. Lanstry in the tableau. "The Judgment of Paris." She is said to have aged greatly since she was last seen on the stage, and the gallery treated her badly.

Marie Dressler, of Lillian Russell's company, who has just been married to George F. Hopper, will star next season in an opera entitled "Baroness Bounty," written for her by Bidore Witmark and Richard Ganthony.

A. M. Palmer and E. E. Rice, have bought the American rights to the Queen of Brilliants, the comic opera by Jakabowsky, composer of Erminie, produced last month with great success in Vienna. It will be staged, probably within a year, at the Garden Theatre.

Thomas Q. Scabrooke has accepted a new comic opera, written by Harry B. Smith and composed by Ludwig Englander, entitled The Caliph. It will be produced in Chicago in April.

Sardou promises Bernhardt that he will complete his play for her by the middle of July.

Reginald de Koven has composed all the music, including the finale, for the first act of Rob Rey. He has also composed the same of the first act of Rob Rey.

Victorien Sardon has served his term as president of the Society of French Dramatists, and has been succeeded by Alexander Dumas.

Superstition Among Lion-Tamers,

Superstition Among Lion-Tamers.

Lion-tamers, while not as superstitions as gamblers, have certain prejudices which affect them strongly. For instance, they are much averse to attempting difficult feats on Friday, and they note the fact that many of the accidents happen on the thirteenth of the month. Miss Berg was nearly killed in Chicago on the thirteenth of July. William Hagenbeck has a superstition peculiar to himself, which is, that Monday is an unlucky day for him, and he will take no risks with any wild animals on that day. Another notion frequently entertained by tamers is, that it hodes them ill to go back to their dressing-rooms for any article that may have been forsorten. They will do their act without a whip or a pair of gloves rather than return for them.—From an article on "Wild Beasts in Captivity," by Cleveland Monfett, in McClure's Magazine for June.

THE LATE MARK DOWNEY

HIS SISTER, CATHARINE DOWNEY HAGAN, PRINCIPAL HEIR,

A Legacy of $40,000 to the Little Sisters of the Poor...The Sum of $5,000 Left to the Male Orphan Asylum.

The will of the late Mark Downey, who died two weeks ago in this city at his residence, No. 2 south Fifth street, probated in the clerk's office of the Chancery Court yesterday. The document reads as follows:

Mark Downey, of the city of Richmond, Va., being of sound and disposing mind, do make this my last will and testament, revoking all others by me hitherto made.

'First, I nominate and appoint my sister Catherine Downey Hagan executrix, and my friends John Dunlop and Thomas G. Peyton, all of the said city of Richmond, executors of this my last will and testament; and I request and direct that no security be required by the court of them or of any of them for the execution of this my will.

'Second, I direct that all my just debts and fumeral expenses be paid so soon as practicable after my decease, and among my funeral expenses I include the cost of a sultable monument over my remains, which I direct my said executors to purchase and erect, leaving entirely to their discretion the design and cost thereof.

THE LITTLE SISTERS OF THE POOR.

"Third, I give and bequeath to the following named charitable institutions or corporations of the city of Richmond the following sums of money, namely: To the Friends' Asylum for colored orphans, $5,000; to the Richmond Male Orphan Asylum, $5,000, and to the Little Sisters of the Poor, $19,000, I would have made a bequest to Saint Joseph's Female Academy and Orphan Asylum, but as that institution or corporation is already well endowed I thought it better to leave a large bequest to the Little Sisters of the Poor, and to omit the Saint Joseph's Female Academy and Orphan Asylum from among the beneficiaries. I would also have made a bequest to the R. E. Lee Camp, No. I. Confederate Veterans, but as I have already erected a good and substantial cottage for said camp, within its grounds year the city of Richmond, and for other reasons not necessary to mention, I have thought it best to revoke a bequest made to said camp in a former will, and not to include said camp among the beneficiaries of this my last will and testament.

"Fourth, I give and bequest the cach of my two cousins, Honora O'Sullivan and Julia O'Sullivan, of the city of Brooklyn, New York, or to the survivor of them, the sum of $5,000. In the event of either or both of them dying before me the said bequest or bequests to her or them, so dying, shall lapse and become part of the residue of my estate hereinafter bequeathed and devised to my said sister Catherine Downey Hagan.

"Fifth, I give and bequeath to each of THE LITTLE SISTERS OF THE POOR.

TO SELATIVES AND PRIENDS. "Fifth, I give and bequeath to each of the children of my nephew, Florence T. Downey, late of Charleston, S. C., deceas-ed, the sum of $5,999, and also to my cousin, Arabella Gordanich, of Queens-town, Ireland, daughter of my cousin Edward O'Sullivan, late of the city of Cork, Ireland, deceased, the like sum of $5,000.

"Sixth, I give and bequeath to William A. Piet, of Baltimore, Md., the sum of $3,000, and to Edward F. Culien, of Texas, the like sum of $3,000. I make these bequests in token of my regard and esteem for these young friends who were brought up by me and for whom I have the highest regard and respect.

Seventh, I give and bequeath to Mrs. Thomas W. Doswell, of Hanover county, Va., the sum of $2,500, and to Mrs. Thomas G. Peyton, of the said city of Richmond, the like sum of $2,500, as a mark of my esteem for them personally and as the wives of my personal friends.

Eighth, I give and bequeath to each of my executors, John Duniop and Thomas G. Peyton, the sum of $00, which legacy is hereby given to each of them in addition to the compensation allowed to them by law as commissioners on my estate.

AN ANNUTY TO A SERVANT.

Ninth. I give to my said sister, Catherine Downey Hagan, the entire residue of my estate, devising and bequeathing to her all said residue, whether real, personal, or mixed, subject only to the following charge, namely: that she pay annually to my colored man-servant, Stephen Clark, during his natural life, the sum of $300, which amount shall be paid to him in equal quarterly instalments of $50 each; the first lustalment to be paid to him on the first day of the month immediately succeeding the administration of my estate by my said executive or either of my executors, and the other quarterly instalments to be paid every three months succeeding thereafter, and in no one year shall said payments together exceed said sum of $300. This provision is intended for a comfortable support and maintenance of the said Stephen, and shall in no manner be subject to his control or to his contracts before said instalments become respectively due and oayable. And if any attempt shall be made by the said Stephen or by any of his creditors to anticipate any of said payments by giving orderes thereon, or by sarnisheeing or attaching, or by any other mode or process at law or otherwise, so as to subject said annuity or any part thereof to the payment of his debts before said quarterly instalments respectively shall have been actually paid to the said Stephen in his own person, then and in that case I direct my said sister, Catherine Downey Hagan, instead of paying said instalments to the said Stephen Clark in person, to apply and expend the same as they become respectively due and payable in such manner as she, the said Catherine Downey Hagan, instead of paying said instalments to the said Stephen Clark, but under no circumstances to pay any orter of my real estate as they may deem necessary to sail in order to pay any of said executors to sale such the purchase money or moneys by said executrix or executors, or be required to

And I do give and bequeath to the Catholic Bishop of the city of Richmond the sum of $1,000; and I do give and bequeath to my friend John Regnault Ellyson, of the said city of Richmond, the sum of $1,000.

This codicil is signed by the testator under date of June 8, 1889, and another codicil, dated January 17, 1891, contains the following provision:

The appointment of John Dunlop as one of the executors of my last will and testament, bearing date the 17fn day of February, 1885, is hereby revoked and annulled, and in the place of the said John Dunlop I hereby appoint and substitute Samuel Sinton, of the city of Richmond, as an executor with Thomas G.
